

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to methods of identifying agents useful for inhibiting cancer cells. The agents bind to one of the proteins described herein, or to a gene or mRNA encoding such protein. The invention is also directed to methods for inhibiting cancer cells by administering an agent that binds to one of the proteins described herein, or to a gene or mRNA encoding such protein.